A Light, Fun-Filled Look at a Few of My Favorite Things February 03, 2014 In a few weeks we will make a sudden transition from the icier months of winter to the (hopefully) warmer months of spring. I have been enjoying the lovely sunshine and spring blizzards, as well as missing the chilly winds from the north. However, this week the weather was so unseasonably warm that it almost made me a winter soldier (although it was kind enough to allow me to wear tights). So far, though, it has brought out my last garden flower of the year. That's right, the dahlias are going to sleep! (If you're curious, I planted 150 plants, of which I only have flowers for around 30. Yikes!) On a different note, I have received so many e-mails and comments asking for a birthday roundup since my last one (and all of them are due to my knowledge of my readers being on a whole other level!). I have made one, and of course, it will not be much help if you don't remember back. I was 14 once, too! There are so many memories that fall into a "3-4 year period" and I'm pretty sure I'm not the only one who has multiple memories in that time period. Though we all tend to forget who our kids were and how fun it was at their age, we all were once little children, too. So for those who are having a hard time creating the "roundup," here it is! A few months ago, before Mother's Day and C's second birthday, I created a piece about the first Mother's Day I ever celebrated as an adult. Even though Mother's Day isn't exactly a milestone in my life, I really wanted to look back and remember all of the things I used to do. Plus, it gives me something to look forward to in June.
